

Doors and Dogs

...by Chase Bailey & Steffany Bello

Being nice to people is easy and fun! It also has its own rewards. Walking a dog or holding a door are little things you can do every day, but if everyone did it the world would be much brighter.

I was walking out of Golden Corral when I saw an old person struggling to open the door. I was wondering what the old person was doing because she was just standing there staring at the door and yelling at it. I was kind of scared because old senile people are mean and scary sometimes. I finally got the courage to walk up to the door and help her, but she started yelling at me telling me that she was capable of opening the door by herself. I assured her I wasn't opening the door just because I thought that she couldn't open it, but because I was being kind and considerate. She smiled and said thank you. It has been so long since someone has been nice to me. I said you're welcome and she walked to her car and speeded out of the parking lot.

I was hanging out with my friend and trying to take care of her because she was sick with a cold. Then I noticed her dog was hyper and wouldn't stop jumping, so I asked my friend what's up with your dog. She told me she hadn't walked him in a week. When I looked at Baybay's face he was whimpering and looked so sad, he licked my face so then I felt bad and wanted to walk Baybay's. I texted Chase to come over so we could take pictures for our project, Chase said he didn't want to, but in the end he did. When we took Baybay for a walk his tail was wagging all happy like and he chased squirrels. It felt good to do something nice and it was fun because we passed a park. We all played on the swings.

Doing good things are not a chore; they are things you should do to make the world better. I think it is funny how some people get awkward and other people get happy. It makes me smile when I see nice people do something good. It's not waste of time to do good deeds because people get awkward so awkward makes them want to do things to so it's like an awkward chain.
